THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

This is a tense moment in the war against Japan, for if we can believe even half Tokyo's feverish announcements a great naval and air battle—perhaps one of the decisive engagements of the whole Pacific conflict—has grown out of the daring and powerful attack which American forces have been making against Nippon's inner defense ring of islands.

We know that a big air battle is raging off the heavily fortified island of Formosa, which we attacked in force last week and were continuing to assault with Superfortresses today. What hasn't been confirmed is the Japanese assertion that the imperial fleet, which we long have been trying to draw into action, "has finally made its appearance off Formosa."

The Japanese also report a new air and sea battle east of the Philippines, and have been making loud and almost hysterical claims for the two engagements. They say they've sunk some 52 American warships, including ten airplane carriers and two battle-ships. To this Admiral Nimitz has made no direct reply. Reports of the American killing in the Formosa area were that we had destroyed 487 planes and sunk or damaged 63 ships.

The formidable series of attacks which were begun by American naval and air forces last week included assaults on the great Philippine Island of Luzon, on Formosa and on the Ryukyu Islands which lie just southwest of Japan proper. Admiral Halsey's Third Fleet and the Superfortresses from the Twentieth Airforce, based in China, certainly tweaked the Mikado's Imperial nose with daring insolence in the assaults on Formosa.

This big island is one of the strongest naval and air bases in the world—probably the most powerful fortified of all Japanese territory outside the home country. It can, and frequently does, provide shelter for a great naval fleet. No wonder the Japs are excited.

When these attacks first got under way it was generally taken for granted that they presaged an early invasion of the Philippines. It's likely that this still holds true, but the Allied program might be influenced by the outcome of the present fighting, if it is indeed true that at long last we have come to grips with the Japanese home fleet.

In any event, these operations would be essentially for MacArthur's recapture of the Philippines. They also are necessary for (1) an invasion of the south-east coast of China and (2) for the day when judgment will be carried right into Japan proper.

DESTRUCTION OF FISH HEAVY IN THIS AREA

Many Leading Streams Are Reduced To Series of Stagnant Pools

Once more fish life in this part of the state, and particularly in most of the streams of Fayette County, has been dealt a staggering blow by the worst drought in a decade, and hundreds of thousands of them have perished.

For weeks some of the streams, notably Main Paint, North Fork, Sugar Creek, Rattlesnake Creek and some of the other smaller streams, have not been flowing through the county, and have been reduced to a series of stagnant pools.

Conservation Officer Chalmers Burns and others have been moving many of the larger fish from pools where the water had reached such a low point that the fish were threatened with extermination, but it has been possible to move only a small number of the fish and place them in deeper pools in the hope that they will survive the drought.

Streams in the county are as low as they were during the memorable drought of 1931, when some of the streams showed little or no water for miles along their courses, and at that time destruction of fish was enormous, and it required years to restore anything like a normal number in the streams.

Not only have the fish perished in shallow pools that soon dried up, but those in stagnant water of deeper pools fall easy prey to cranes and other natural enemies, as well as to persons who catch them unlawfully while the fish are hampered by shallow water in a very restricted area.

The cooler weather is doing much to help save the fish imprisoned in small pools, and Burns is hoping that early rains will be sufficient to start the streams flowing once more.

When these attacks first got under way it was generally taken for granted that they presaged an early invasion of the Philippines. It's likely that this still holds true, but the Allied program might be influenced by the outcome of the present fighting, if it is indeed true that at long last we have come to grips with the Japanese home fleet.

CATTLE AND HOG SLAUGHTER FAR AHEAD OF 1943

New Meat Production Mark Looms for America in Third Year of War

By DEAN McCUMBER

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—(P)—Meat production is heading for new record highs this year, it is indicated by figures for the nine months ended September 30.

Slaughter of cattle and hogs is already far ahead of last year's totals. Indications are that the total cattle dressings will climb above 13 million, compared with 11,717,000 in 1943, the previous record.

Percentage increases in meat production are not expected to keep up with increases in the numbers dressed because of a marked decline in the average weights of slaughter hogs and cattle.

Traders said pork producers prefer to market weights under 240 pounds at the $14.75 ceiling instead of heavier weights for the $14.00 OPA figure. As a result average scalings are running about 20 pounds lighter than a year ago.

Conference Will Be Held at First Presbyterian Church

Fayette Countians will have an opportunity to get authentic information about the problems involved in establishing a just and lasting peace following the approaching victory of the battlefields at a county peace conference to be held here at the First Presbyterian Church November 2, Rev. H. B. Twining, pastor of the First Baptist Church, said today.

Rev. Twining is president of the county ministerial association and is serving as director of the conference.

The conference is one of a series of similar meetings to be held simultaneously throughout the state from October 23 to November 3 under the sponsorship of the Ohio Council of Churches, Rev. Twining said.

So He Won't Worry About His Family!

You don't need a tired soldier to tell you that paying more than ceiling prices can push food prices—and all prices—higher, so that his wife and children may find it harder to get along on his allotment!

And it isn't just his family that will suffer if OPA Ceiling Price Lists aren't observed. We'll ALL lose... when prices go higher and higher... when the buying power of our earnings becomes smaller and smaller... when runaway costs may deny people many of the things they need!

It is good manners to apologize if you accidentally shove a person or step on a foot. It is equally necessary to accept the apology graciously if you would be considered a well-bred person.
Words of Wisdom
The gain of lying is nothing else but not to be trusted of any, nor to be believed when we say the truth.—Sir W. Raleigh.
Today's Horoscope
You are energetic, vigorous and have determination, if today is your birthday. You only acknowledge defeat when you have exhausted all your resources. You are kind and sympathetic, your temper is not easily aroused and you are quick to forgive. You will always be happy and contented. Military matters, especially of a secret nature, will prosper in the next year. Also travel, routine business and intellectual activities. Do not speculate, however. Born on this date a child may be somewhat delicate in the early years, but very clever, evincing inventive genius and literary talent. Many journals are likely.

Man and Tree
It is seldom that there is anything pleasant about a funeral, but the humorous Irvin Cobb achieved that miracle. He lies in his beloved Kentucky, near a great oak that he loved, and for his special benefit a dogwood tree is planted there. His ashes are placed where they will be absorbed by the tree; and if that tree survives, as he said when he arranged his own burial, that will be good enough for him. He and the two trees will carry on together. And really, it is easy to fancy the genial humorist and his beloved friends making wisecrack to each other, as the great, friendly oak murmurs in the breeze.
"Who plants a tree plants hope," says the poet. Could there be a more hopeful and congenial burial than this friendly union of the tree with the man who loved it so well?
Building Is Better
One of the things which most impressed Eric Johnston in his trip to Russia some months ago, reported in Life Magazine, was what he saw in Leningrad. During the long, hard siege, when nearly everyone was flagging, as the beautiful old buildings of that great city were destroyed, the mayor had an inspired idea.
"How could it be rebuilt into a more amazing city in the world of tomorrow? Prizes were offered for the best designs. Competition was started between districts. Huge drawings and blueprints began to appear on the bulletin boards of factories and in the headquarters of regimental commands. City squares were to be enlarged and made more serviceable. New highways, new bridges, new paintings—all were fighting in an epic struggle for the Leningrad that would arise tomorrow."
"The plans for the new Leningrad," Mayor Popkov told Johnston, "were better than medicine. They diverted human energy from grief to prospects of grandeur, shifted mental outlook from destruction of today to the reconstruction of tomorrow." Then he uttered the parting words: "The mental and physical processes of man work better when building than when destroying."
Those words deserve the keenest consideration possible by all executives of the present and the future. Remarkably as we have waged this war, with equal power we can build for peace, if once our imaginations are aroused and our determination becomes fixed to work together for a splendid future.
Political Intolerance
Those who view matter-of-factly the spectacle, incredible to European eyes, of American candidates for offices urging Americans to vote, for anyone, just so they vote, might do well to ponder the words of Dr. C. M. Destler of Connecticut College.
Speaking to an Ohio audience on "Intolerance of Political Differences," Dr. Destler defined true political intolerance as consisting in "unwillingness to concede to rival political programs or their adherents the right to exist, to agitate or to seek to impose their views on the State." He illustrated the lengths to which this can be the political warfare which divided France until many preferred foreign conquest to

Causes of Sinus Infections
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
WE HAVE heard a good deal more since the war began than we ever did before about tropical diseases. But there is at least one great temperate climate disease—chronic sinus infection of the nose.
Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.
This is literally a good description. It is almost unknown among natives of the tropics or of arctic or subarctic regions.
What are the elements that make it a temperate climate disease? Well, in the first place, a temperate climate is where the largest number of people are crowded together and close together. They get indoors together, in which their habits are different from their tropical neighbors. The Eskimos go inside, or at least so I have heard, but there are not so many of them. This first element then in making "sinus" a temperate climate disease is that in a temperate climate people swap germs with greater frequency and facility.
Another factor is that in the temperate zone the vegetation is of the sort that is liable to be wind pollinated, and dust flies around so we have the allergic, or vasomotor, rhinitis type of chronic sinus.
Shape of Nose
Still another factor is anatomical. The temperate zone inhabitant tends to have a thin nose with poor drainage, a disadvantage from the sinus viewpoint over the broad nose of both the South Sea Islander and the Eskimo.
Whatever the reasons it is certainly here in full force. There have been a good many advances in the medical knowledge of the condition. In general, more conservative methods of treatment are now selected by the nose and throat specialists. Nasal ventilation and drainage are in most cases now secured without radical removal of the nasal septum. Electro surgery is used to shrink the

Names in Politics
The Cleveland Citizens League, which aims to elect better officials, is trying to defeat State Senator Frank S. Day for reelection. Day is harmless enough, but the League thinks abler men should represent a large city.
Day, an electrical lineman, owes two previous victories to his name, popular in Ohio. William R. Day was secretary of state under President McKinley and served in the United States Supreme Court. His son, William L. Day, was United States district judge. Arthur H. Day (no relation) served in the state supreme court. On the county bench are Fred S. Day and another Frank S. Day. No wonder the lineman's friends told him, "With a name like yours, you ought to run for office."
In Massachusetts Joseph B. Ely, a distinguished lawyer who later became governor twice, was beaten some years ago in a primary race for lieutenant-governor by a young law student named Kelly. Kelly did not campaign at all, but merely filed his name. The voters who liked his name better than Ely's did the rest.
And in 1932 James A. Farley boomed Franklin D. Roosevelt for presidential nomination by insisting, "There's magic in that name."

Washington at a Glance By JACK STINETT
WASHINGTON—Your capital in wartime:
Far eastern experts at the State Department won't talk at all for publication, but it is intimated that the primary cause of recent military setbacks in China is lack of transportation. You can't fly big trucks, little trucks, tanks and half-tracks over the "Hump," and there has been no other way to get them in since closing of the Burma Road.
This, it is said, is the reason China's northern armies can't get back to the south and east to stem the Japanese drive in that area. When war front refugees, arriving in Chungking recently, wanted to know why a Japanese column of only 5,000 men was allowed to advance 100 miles in ten days, the alibi was simply that the Chinese didn't have a division equipped with sufficient transport to cut them off.
If it's true, preparations are being made so quietly that it hasn't leaked out yet officially, but the rumor is persistent that thousands of Italian prisoners of war soon will be sent back to Italy to be released, after which they will immediately join Italian legions to fight with the Allies against the Axis.
The Italian prisoner situation has caused the Army plenty of grief. Most Italians sincerely desire to become active co-belligerents, yet several efforts to establish their status as even non-combatant troops here in the United States have met with considerable civilian criticism, especially when they were allowed a certain amount of "supervised freedom and recreation."
Sending them back to Italy, where they could fight for the Allies or work for rehabilitation, could cause much easier breathing in a lot of Army circles.
If this plan is carried out, it will not include known Fascists and recalcitrants, of which there are many.
Political observers are watch-swollen turbinates of the nose. Irradiation by the X-ray and radium will remove lymphoid tissue and polyps with the minimum of inconvenience. And the X-ray has proven most useful in diagnosis when the latest technique is used to show all the anatomical details present.

Still, with all the improvements the chronic sinus sufferer can still hardly look forward to any complete and magical relief. The very stars in their courses are against that. Or to be less poetical, what Dr. Johnson would have called the anfractuosités (to save you a visit to the dictionary, that means workings and turnings) of the inside of the nose are against it. You get a few rats trapped in the Mammoth Cave and it is hard to get them all out with a small garden hose. You get a few germs wandering around the caverns of the nose and it is hard to get them all out permanently with a nasal spray or a nasal douche.
Three Types of Sinus
The difference between the fellow who has an infective sinus disease due to germs and an allergy due to pollen or dust or food can be distinguished by the victim himself. For the fairly rare individual who has never picked up a chronic sinus infection, a winter cold, one of which we are each entitled, lasts about six weeks and then he is probably immune, perhaps for the rest of the winter, or perhaps until spring.
The germ-sinus subject has one that lasts a little longer, he is a little more susceptible to another, but he finally manages to acquire a fairly long period of immunity and freedom from discomfort. But the fellow with the allergic coryza is always sniffing. No sooner does he get rid of one stubbed nose than he gets another. You may find his spray gun in the bathroom or in a drawer, in his desk or on the mantle piece. Of course only too frequently a chronic germ infection of the sinuses sensitizes to allergy of multiple natures and those people I just feel sorry for.

Drue took a long breath and said "I hoped you would come to the door, you or Bevens. Anna, I'm coming in. What room is he in?"
"His own room. He, oh, but, Madam," said Anna, on the verge of tears. Drue stepped inside the hall. I followed and closed the door behind me, for Anna was too stricken to move. There was a quick impression of a massive hall and staircase that was all dark wood paneling, and a floor made of squares of black and white marble; of high-backed chairs and long Italian tables; of rich but subdued color in the tapestries and rugs. Anna wrung her clean pink hands together, and Drue said, "It's all right, Anna. I'm a nurse, you remember; they sent me here to take care of him."
She too gave a quick look along the depths of the great hall; there were doors, solid slabs of dark carved wood, but there was a kind of thickness and padded quality in the place that made me feel no one was likely to hear our voices. She went quickly to the stairway and stopped and seemed to listen, looking upward. Her soft, green tweed suit was sleekly tailored to her slender, erect figure; her profile against the dark wood paneling was clear and white, and her crimson mouth was rather set, yet obviously it was held so only by the strongest effort of will.
Just then something happened that threatened it. For there was a tiny scamper of sound somewhere near, a pause and a silence which had a quality of the most intense observation.
We all looked at the back of the hall; at the entrance to some passage stood a small creature in a veritable agony of watchfulness. Stood there for only a second or two, then Drue said with a break in her voice, "Sir Francis," and with a tiny rush of feet, a throb of sound in its throat, the little thing hurried itself across the great hall and toward us.
Toward us? Toward Drue. He leaped into her arms and strove frantically, almost sobbing, to lick her face and her hands. It was a Yorkshire terrier, a tiny thing, his long forelock hanging down over his glistening eyes.
Anna said, "He's never forgotten, Miss."
Drue held the little terrier tight and put her face down against its little frosted body for a long moment. Then she looked up the stairway and put her hand to her mouth again. It was no longer the firm resolute line it had been. She took a quick breath, and still holding the little dog, started up the stairs. The maid made a futile, prohibitive move forward and stopped.
Drue did not look back. So again I followed. And Anna finally felt by a narrow corridor which seemed to go toward a servants' wing. Along the main corridor toward the north end of the house a man—the workman who had met us at the train—seemed to be sorting my bags from Drue's by examining the initials and tags. Our rooms then were to be where he left our bags. I made a mental note of the door he opened and went along the hall southward, in Drue's wake. Anna followed me.
Halfway along it Drue stopped. The hall was gloomy, for it was a dark day with a fine, cold rain falling. But I could see her pause for an instant with her hand on a door-knob; then she opened the door and disappeared. The maid, Anna, who by that time was just behind me, said, "Holy Mother of God! But I could do nothing..." And wrung her hands again.
Probably I had some idea of clarifying the situation and my own confused state of mind at the same time. For I stated my position then, in a loud clear voice. "You don't understand. I am a nurse. My name is Sarah Keate. Miss Cable is a nurse too. Your local doctor, Dr. Chivers, sent for us last night. I was sent here to nurse a Mr. Craig Brent."
"I stopped, for the maid didn't hear a word I said. She too, opened the door and went into the room beyond and naturally, again, I followed."
It was another door leading into a bathroom.
Drue was reading the doctor's orders intently, and Anna was close beside her, watching Drue's face and knotting her fingers nervously in her apron. Drue was white, and the upward gleam of the light outlined the clean line of her chin and cheekbones, and cast a soft shadow around her eyes. She looked up directly at me with a poignant appeal in her eyes and her mouth. She thrust the tablet into my hands and said to Anna in a whisper that was as chilled and cold as the rain outside. "Anna, who shot him?"
Well, that gave me a real and most unwelcome start. It was the first I'd known of that. They had said at the registry office (or rather, I remembered suddenly, Drue had said when she persuaded me to take the case with her) that there'd been an accident. Not that it was a shooting accident. I don't like shooting. I held the tablet in a hand suddenly gone stiff.
Anna shook her head. "They said accident," she whispered. In fact, our whispers and the dreary day, the silence in the great, thick-walled house and the rain against the windows gave the whole thing a kind of eeriness. Drue's small hands caught Anna's shoulders.
"Anna, you must tell me. What happened?"
"I don't know, Miss Drue. I swear I don't know. They found him in the garden, there by the hedge..."
"In the garden? When?"
"Last night. About eleven. They carried him into the house and sent for the doctor."
"But what did they say? How could there have been an accident?"
"They said he was cleaning a gun." Anna's eyes wavered and went back to Drue's.
"At eleven o'clock at night?" murmured Drue. "In the garden?"
Anna said nothing. The rain swished gently against the window behind her. It was then perhaps three o'clock in the afternoon, but it seemed later because of the dark day. Finally, Drue said, "Who brought him in? Who found him?"
The maid swallowed. "Bevens." "Bevens! And who else?"
"Mr. Nicky and Mr. Peter Huber. He's a friend, an old school friend of Mr. Craig's."
"I don't remember him." Drue was frowning. "Is he here? Staying in the house?"
"Yes, Miss Drue. He and Mr. Nicky and Bevens heard the shot; they were in the morning room, and Bevens was looking up for help, and they found him—he'd fainted by that time. The doctor was called at once. Mr. Brent—oh, you must go! You can't stay."
Drue paid no attention to the maid's pleading. Who's been taking care of him? You?
"Yes, Miss Drue. And Mrs. Chivers. She came right away—as she always does when we need her. She stayed all night. She helped the doctor get the bullet out."
"Bullet..." whispered Drue after a moment and seemed to shiver a little, and I looked at the tablet in my hand.
Drue waited while I read it. I knew she was watching to see what I thought of what I read there and I knew, too, that she was counting on my skill and experience. That was why she had made me come with her.

Four Attend Board Meeting From Delta Kappa Gamma Chapter Here, in Columbus

Mrs. Frank Mayo, who has served as the state vice-president of Delta Kappa Gamma for the past two years, was chairman at the luncheon meeting, Saturday, October fourteenth, of the Delta Kappa Gamma State Board meeting held at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel. Others attending with Mrs. Mayo were Mrs. Harry Elliott, Miss Gladys Melson and Miss Jane Durant, from the chapter here.

The state founders who spoke briefly at the luncheon were Miss Alice Adams, assistant county superintendent of Cuyahoga County; Dr. Ida Baker, instructor of mathematics at Western Reserve University; Miss Chloe McGlinchay, instructor of commercial subjects at Central High School, Columbus; Miss Alice Rosemond, Dean of Women at Marietta College; Dr. Virginia Sanderson, professor of speech at Ohio State University; and Miss Margaret White, superintendent of elementary English, Cleveland.

Reports of standing committees were given by Miss Edith Peters, chairman of the State Retirement Committee and also a member of the Ohio State Retirement Board. Margaret Young, chairman of research, reported on the special recognition given to date compiled on "Pioneer Women Teachers of Ohio." The historical work on the Pioneer Women Teachers has been written by a research committee from each chapter in the state.

The program chairman stressed the need of engaging in an active program to further adequate recruiting of young people for the teaching profession. Also, a continued and more intensive study of "Conditions of Teachers at Home and Abroad" should be made by investigating their living conditions, economics, and social status, as well as their loyalty to the teaching profession.

In the state president's report, Miss Elizabeth Guilfoyle emphasized the importance of developing leadership and the responsibility of assuming leadership, such as will be needed in planning for the post-war period and at the peace table. She told of the honor that had come to the National President, Dr. Margaret Stroh, when she was invited to sit with the best-educated women of today at a World Peace Conference, held in Washington D. C.

After the luncheon meeting the newly-elected state officers were installed. The officers are each outstanding in the field of education and hold prominent positions on state committees. The president, Miss Alma Zinniger, of Canton, is a practicing attorney, as well as a full time teacher. Other officers installed were vice-president, Miss Margaret Boyd, Steubenville; second vice-president, Miss Alice Hawthorne, Cleveland; recording secretary, Miss Edna Felt, Athens; corresponding secretary, Miss Ruth Dusha, Toledo; parliamentarian, Miss Evangeline Lindley, Dayton.

The outgoing and the newly-elected officers met at the Maramor for dinner, after which a brief business session was held to complete plans for the coming year.

Yearly Awards Presented At Meeting in Columbus To Outstanding Authors

During the afternoon session, held in the Ohio State Office Building, prizes were awarded by Mrs. Myers Y. Cooper, founder of the club, for outstanding work by Ohio authors.

Open Circle Class Met at Coil Home

Mrs. Eber Coil was hostess to members of the Open Circle Class of Grace Methodist Church, when devotionals by Mrs. Madge Pensyl opened the evening's business session conducted by Mrs. Atrice Hayne.

The lessons of the past month were reviewed by Mrs. Edith Scott, Mrs. Hazel Maddux and Miss Lulu Binegar, which afterwards were held open for discussion.

The hostess was assisted by Miss Lillian Taylor, Miss Elsa Craig, Mrs. Lulu Toole, Mrs. Nona Moore and Miss Ellen Montgomery, when refreshments were served.

On November tenth, Mrs. Mary Boone will be the hostess.

Browning Club Topics

Browning Club members are looking forward to what promises to be a most interesting meeting, Tuesday evening, when the first paper will be presented by Rev. John K. Abernethy, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, on the topic "Living Religions of the World."

Mrs. Maggie Hopkins will then take as her topic, "The Delicate Art of Etching" and "Confederate Heroes" will be the topic taken by Miss Miriam Perdue.

Mrs. A. B. Murray is calling special attention to the fact this meeting will be guest night. Special music will be featured on the program, Mrs. Robert Meriweather, program chairman, said today.

Five of 32 Bowling Teams Unbeaten

Only five teams of the 32 which make up the four bowling loops here, remained unbeaten after two weeks of battle on the Main Street alleys. Three of them were in the API Men's League and one each in the City Women's League and API Women's League. All of the teams in the Men's City League have felt the sting of defeat. Only three have not yet tasted victory.

Ohio-Great Lakes Grid Game Is Next Saturday Feature

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Classroom examinations replace gridiron tests at a majority of the country's colleges this week and next Saturday's football program as a result has less sparkle.

—Spying— On Sports

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Overseas roundup:
TONY CORDARO, A. G. I. from Des Moines, ventures a prediction from England that the United States may be deluged with British boxers and other athletes after the war unless a tax ruling is revised. . . . By some quaint mental process the tax arbiters decided that boxers, football players, etc., came under the category of "non-living" performers like those moving figures on the screen, as distinguished from "living" performers such as actors, music hall jugglers and comedians. . . . The importance of the distinction is that living performers pay only 25 percent entertainment tax, non-living 47 percent. . . . On top of that the British Boxing Board of Control takes five percent on all shows drawing more than $8,000. . . . That doesn't leave much for the boys who get their noses mashed, and Tony figures most of them will be thinking about Jacobs Beach and the fabulous American purses they've heard about.

Tressel Leading Football Scorers

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Lee Tressel of Baldwin-Wallace leads the nation's football scorers. The Berea, O., halfback has crossed the goal line for nine touchdowns in six games and converted once for an aggregate of 55 points. This is one point more than the 54 Keith De Courcy, of the University of Washington, has compiled in four games. Johnny Ziegler of Colorado College, and Tom "Shorty" McWilliams, of Mississippi State, are tied for third place at 48 points apiece.

Baseball Veteran Dies in Toledo

TOLEDO, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Tully Frederick (Topsy) Hartsel, 70, former American League baseball player died here Saturday night. Leadoff man for the Philadelphia Athletics when they met the New York Giants in the World Series of 1905, Hartsel played left field. The next year, he played in the longest game in the American League history, the 24-inning victory of the Athletics over the Boston Red Sox. As manager of the Toledo Mud Hens, Hartsel led that club to second place in 1912. Flags were hoisted over Hawaii by the Spanish in 1555, the French in 1786, the Russians in 1814, and the British in 1843.

Lloyd's Markettes, for several years one of the top teams of women in the city, headed the City Women's League without a defeat, as the teams got set for the third week of bowling. The Business and Professional Women, who had a hard time keeping up with the parade last year, were in second place and only one game back. The Fayette Fruit Market outfit, the Murphy Store girls and Light's Dairymaids, who in the past have had one of the best teams in the sport, were in the cellar together with only one win apiece.

LION CUBS WIN GAME

A 12 to 0 win over the Children's Home team Saturday morning at Gardner Park bolstered the spirits of the Blue Lion Cubs as they set out to strengthen weak spots for their game at Chillicothe Thursday afternoon.

It was the Cubs first game and the event for which they had been practicing on the Gregg Street lot every afternoon after school for weeks.

The Saturday morning game disclosed some up-and-coming talent among the youngsters who will be carrying the ball for the varsity within the next two or three years. It was not a good time or day for townsfolk to get away from the store and office, but there were a few of the faithful there to cheer them on. The Cubs found difficulty in breaking through the defense put up by the Home boys; so they took to the air in the second half. Dave Coble and Brandon scored in the last two periods.

come out of hiding and was "in pursuit of the fleeing enemy task force." Imperial communiques asserted that 16 American warships, including ten carriers, were sunk, and another 19 damaged. Jubilant Japanese broadcasts quoted Premier Gen. Kuniaki Koiso as saying "the long awaited opportunity for Japan's battle in the Pacific has just come." Nipponese "naval observers" were reported to have said "the avowed enemy offensive against the Philippines has been dealt a sledgehammer blow."

Fleet Not Mentioned
The Japanese fleet, long sought by American commanders in the Pacific, has not been mentioned in Adm. Chester W. Nimitz's reports on the Formosa action. His reports, still incomplete, listed 487 Japanese planes as destroyed, 63 enemy ships sunk or damaged, against a lot of 45 U.S. planes. Tokyo said a diversionary unit of the great American carrier task force was intercepted by Philippine-based planes after 60 U.S.

road junction close to the Norwegian border.

Pravda of Moscow described the newly won highway center as the "Key to Norway," without naming it further, and said it had been captured after Russian forces beat off a counterattack by a German armored column retreating toward Norway.

Also, Pravda said the land and sea assault on Petsamo, capture of which was announced officially by Moscow last night, routed two choice enemy Alpine divisions in a three hour battle.

The battle for Belgrade was not mentioned in the official Soviet communique, but Berlin acknowledged that Russian troops and tanks and Marshal Tito's Yugoslav partisans had fought their way into the city after reaching the outskirts Saturday.

Berlin implied also that other Soviet troops had crossed into German East Prussia on a 27-mile front in the Memel territory.

Moscow announced Red army troops had advanced three miles west of the fallen Latvian capital, Riga.

In Yugoslavia, the Russians announced the fall of Pozarevac an important communications point 36 miles southeast of Belgrade, as well as Krusevac, 95 miles southeast of the capital.

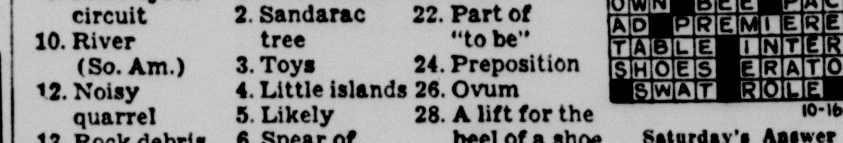

Within a few hours another broadcast from Budapest announced that the Hungarian Nazi party headed by Ferenc Szalasi had taken matters in hand to eliminate traitors "at all costs" and promised that "the most ruthless measures," including the death penalty, would be imposed on those disobeying orders.

Meanwhile Russian armies drove across the country's central plains less than 50 miles from Budapest. A Nazi military collapse in Hungary would open to the Red armies the road to Vienna and set up an invasion of the Reich over the soil of Austria.

The German sea escape route from northern Finland has been cut with the capture of the Arctic port of Petsamo and advancing Red Army tanks were reported

WOMAN BURNED SERIOUSLY IN KEROSENE FIRE

Small Farm Home in Jefferson Township Destroyed Late Saturday

Mrs. Russell Duncan, 19, was probably fatally burned and the Elza Duncan farm home with all contents was destroyed late Saturday evening, when a can of kerosene exploded while Mrs. Duncan was kindling a fire to prepare the evening meal.

Mrs. Duncan, whose husband is with the armed forces in France, was alone in the kitchen at the time and the exploding liquid drenched her clothing and caused flames to envelop her.

Dashing out into the yard, she rolled over and over until the flames were extinguished, but not before nearly all of her clothing was burned, according to neighbors.

Her screams attracted the attention of her father-in-law who was upstairs at the time and when he sought to rush down stairs the stairway was blocked by smoke and flames. He escaped from a second story window.

The cottage was soon enveloped in flames and not a single article was removed.

Neighbors rushed in and Dr. O. L. Wiseman of Jeffersonville was called and after administering first aid, Mrs. Duncan, suffering intensely, was sent to a Dayton Hospital, where admittance was found impossible, so she was taken to the home of her mother, a Mrs. Jordan, in that city.

Last reports indicated that her condition is critical due to the extensive burns sustained.

The Morrow ambulance was used in moving Mrs. Duncan to Dayton.

Monday when call came for blood donors in an effort to save Mrs. Duncan's life, several Jefferson township residents went to Dayton. Six pints of blood was wanted, the reports stated.

LEAF HAULING IS LAUNCHED

Citizens Asked To Sweep Leaves Into Gutters

The annual hauling of leaves from the streets of the city was started Monday, City Manager W. L. Stambaugh said, and will be continued as rapidly as possible throughout the season.

The leaf cart, which was built here two or three years ago and has greatly facilitated the handling of leaves, has been overhauled and is being used in the work. The leaf cart does the work of three or four men.

Residents on the principal streets are asked to sweep the leaves into the gutters, and they will be collected as rapidly as the street crews can reach them.

PARADE OVER; NWF MEETING IS MONDAY

Features of the meeting are a speech by Capt. W. H. Morton, veteran of 50 missions in the Mediterranean Theater of War, and a movie, "Memo To Joe," with a narration by Quentin Reynolds. Walter Rettig, chairman of the campaign here, will preside at the meeting to which all 300 NWF workers are asked to come.

FOUR INVASION VETERAN HOME AFTER 2 YEARS

David Brown Says He Liked Scotland Better Than Other Countries

Veteran of four invasions, David E. Brown, yeoman 2-c, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Brown, 422 Van Deman Street, is home for the first time in two years. He is in the North African, Sicilian, Italian and Normandy invasions.

Brown said he liked Scotland better than any other country he saw. He described the people as generous. "Their dance halls are 'super,'" although they would say "smashing," he commented.

Brown will be in Washington C. H. until November 1 when he is to report back to duty. That duty has for the past three and a half years been general office work aboard ship. He wears the good conduct, pre-Pearl Harbor, American Theater of Operations and European Theater of Operations ribbons.

Brown is a 1939 graduate of Washington C. H. High School, he said. Before entering the Navy, he worked at the Goody Shoppe.

Prowling through bookshops in England and Scotland was about the only souvenir hunting Brown did, he said. He was based in Africa for nearly a year, but said he purchased few things there.

Brown had little to say about the four invasions he witnessed.

It takes a lot more than a telephone!

THE INSTRUMENT IN THE HOME is less than 5 per cent of the equipment needed to give telephone service. There must be a pair of wires leading from the house to the pole line, a pair of wires in the overhead cable, and another pair in the underground cable, switchboards and a vast amount of central office equipment.

When we cannot give you service it may be because of the shortage of one or all of these items. Of the more than 70,000 persons waiting for service in Ohio, only about one-fourth could be served if instruments were available.

If you are waiting for home telephone service, we think we know how you feel. You would like it now. And we would like to install it for you now.

But as long as the needs of war have first claim on telephone facilities and until manufacture of equipment in adequate quantity can be resumed, we cannot tell you when we will be able to serve you. Your order is important to us and we do promise that it will not be forgotten. It will be reviewed frequently and will be filled in its proper turn. That might be some time after final victory.
